CHAPTER ROUND-UP
What’s happening around the Section
FROM THE PRESIDENT

It is with great enthusiasm and pride that I write my first letter as your President.

I want to thank the membership, fellow board members and section staff for the opportunity to serve and work with all of you. This whole experience has been very humbling for me. I am grateful for the faith you have put in me to allow me to serve as your President for the next two years. I take this responsibility very seriously and consider it a privilege to be able to make a difference in the lives and careers of my fellow NEPGA professionals. I am so fortunate to have been able to make a career in golf and reap the benefits of the PGA and I am looking forward to giving back.

The PGA of America as well as the NEPGA are both in very good standing. We are strong financially. The NEPGA is getting closer to securing a new long term solution for a home-site. We have many programs in recent years that have afforded our members countless opportunities. NEPGA U is cutting edge and the envy of other Sections nationwide. Our section staff does an outstanding job with tournaments and juniors. The Foundation is growing in resources and programming by leaps and bounds in just two short years from inception. With all of the good that is going on we should never rest on our laurels or be naive enough to not look at ways we can improve.

We as a board will meet once again this winter in early January for annual planning session to review the year that was 2019 and look for ways to improve for 2020 and beyond. With the help of my committee chairs we will spend time together to focus on how we can improve the service and benefits that are provided to all of our members. If you have suggestions, concerns, or would like to serve on a committee, please reach out to myself or the committee chair.

I am very thankful that the following NEPGA members have agreed to lead our committees:

Awards - Ron Bibeau, PGA, Country Club Enterprises
Education - Mike Bradshaw, PGA, Kirkebrae Country Club
Facility Relations – Larry Kelley, PGA, Five Star Golf Cars
Finance – Mike Bradshaw, PGA, Kirkebrae Country Club
Foundation - Rob Jarvis, PGA, Bangor Municipal Golf Club
Membership – Chip Johnson, PGA, Hatherly Country Club
Scholarships – Joanne Flynn, PGA, Windham Country Club
Junior Golf – Darren Falk, PGA, Darren Falk Golf/Holly Ridge GC
Tournaments – Chip Johnson, PGA, Hatherly Country Club
I look forward to working on your behalf over the next two years. It is my promise to you that with the help of the entire board of directors and the Section staff, we will do all we can to improve the services and benefits available for all NEPGA members. If there is anything that you need or would like to discuss, please do not hesitate to contact me. I welcome your feedback on how we can all get better. The sharing of ideas and the desire to help one another is what makes the PGA such a special organization.

My best to everyone for a great Fall and Winter season,

Allan J Belden, PGA
A TIME TO REFLECT

The tournament season in New England has come to an end and our Section transitions the focus to planning and organizing for 2020. The Section leadership attended the PGA of America Annual Meeting in West Palm Beach, Florida and returned energized and excited to get to work. The Annual Meeting is always a wonderful opportunity to connect with Section leaders from across the country and learn about the PGA of America’s direction. I am always impressed by the talented PGA Professionals and successful Sections across this country, but rest assured, your Section is admired, very well respected, and our Professionals are some of the best in the world.

Henry Clay’s has a famous quote: “The time will come when winter will ask you what you were doing all summer.” I think in our business we can slightly change the seasons around a bit and reconstruct Clay’s quote by saying “The time will come when Spring will ask you what you were doing all winter.” We certainly do not want to answer Spring by saying “well, I really didn’t do too much.”

The time will come when SPRING will ask you what you were doing all WINTER.”

There is no question we all can enjoy some well-deserved down time this offseason, but while the winter months can be a time to recharge, they also can be a great opportunity to evaluate the current year and prepare for the next one. Ask yourself a few questions: Did you set goals at the start of the year and track your success? What did you do well this year? What can you do even better next year? Where are we and where do we want to go?
Many of us have great ideas that we want to implement someday. If you look outside your window right now there’s a good chance there’s snow on the ground (at least within the Section boundaries). What better time to plan and implement those ideas than now? Maybe it’s a membership drive, new tournament you’ve been contemplating, or creating or growing a social media presence for your facility. Maybe it’s a personal fitness goal, or a goal to improve your golf game. Whatever it is that you’ve put on the back burner over the last eight months, I encourage you to take time this offseason to revisit it and see what can be implemented for 2020. This is exactly what we will be doing at the Section!

As I mentioned earlier, this time of the year is a great time to reflect on a personal level. For me I would like to reflect on something I wrote about a few years ago, that for me is very fitting this year. As we sometimes get distracted by the holiday lights, the extravagant department store advertisements and displays, or the radio stations that have been playing holiday music since Halloween, let us not forget those that are less fortunate or alone this holiday season. Call that friend from college you haven’t spoken with in a while. Reach out to your grandparents that are a few states away. Let your neighbor know that you are thinking about their family as their child is protecting our country while stationed in another part of the world. Connect with that someone who may have recently lost a loved one and will be spending the holiday without them for the first time. You will be happy that you did, and so will they.

Our green friend who lives on top of Mount Crumpit once had an epiphany…. “Maybe Christmas doesn’t come from a store. Maybe Christmas perhaps, means a little bit more.” I think he is right.

I have enjoyed serving the New England Section and its wonderful PGA Professionals this year. Thank you so very much for the opportunity, and I am excited for what 2020 has in store.

I sincerely wish you all a very Merry Christmas, the happiest of holidays and a safe and successful New Year!

Respectfully,
Michael Higgins
YOU can help the child or grandchild of a New England PGA member fund their education by contributing to the NEPGA Scholarship Fund!

Since 1985, the families of NEPGA members have benefited from scholarships through the NEPGA Scholarship Fund. Each year the New England PGA asks its members to make a donation of whatever amount they can in order to continue to help deserving students reach their academic goals. Our goal this year is to raise $7,500 for the families of NEPGA members.

With the holidays just around the corner, please consider donating to this worthy cause. You can make your donation in the memory of or in the honor of any individual whom you would like to recognize. Any amount you can contribute will be most welcomed and appreciated. You will receive a personal letter acknowledging your contribution for income tax purposes.

Daylight is scarce and there’s snow in the forecast. But business is heating up for Adam Kolloff, PGA, at Pure Drive Golf.

Rather than avoiding the harsh Boston winter like many PGA professionals, Kolloff leans into it. His winter-proof golf facility just outside of Boston features five bays, each with a TrackMan, TV, projector, iPad, two video cameras and computer. The indoor facility also boasts club-fitting, golf leagues, and high-tech instruction that leaves traditional teaching in the dust.

Building the dream
An early adaptor to golf technology – Kolloff literally wrote the book on teaching & learning with TrackMan – Adam first had the idea to open an indoor golf facility years ago.

“Ever since I’ve been using TrackMan I thought the feedback was unbelievable,” he said. “I wanted to create a place where people had access to this, because normally the common golfer does not. To take this idea and create a place like this, it was a long process.”

The process began with finding the right location: a space close to Boston and large enough to house all the bells and whistles in Adam’s vision. It took about a year to find the perfect 4,200 square-foot facility at the intersection of I-93 and I-95 in Woburn about 20 minutes, Lord willing, north of Boston. Once the site was selected, Adam spent another year decking it out with the proper flooring, padded walls, netting, screens, and the tech that sets it apart.

Attracting the gamers
When Adam opened the doors to Pure Drive Golf in April of 2018, he chose to cater to the serious golfer who was looking to improve rather than the social crew looking for a fun night out.

“Most of the other indoor facilities serve alcohol, it’s more about entertainment, ‘Let’s go have a few drinks and have some fun,’ which is great,” he said. “Go do that if that’s what you want to do. But we wanted to get the people who were focused on getting better, focused on playing the best that they can, and I think the facility caters exactly to that type of golfer. I don’t think you see a lot of facilities like this.”

With that philosophy, Pure Drive holds hours normally reserved for your local gym or coffee shop, opening the doors at 6:00 AM a couple times a week to cater to the motivated nine-to-fivers.

“We get a fair amount of guys that come over here and practice, then they go to work,” Adam said. “You have to learn where the highest traffic is, and that’s where you focus the hours you want to be open.”

THERE’S AN APP FOR THAT
Kolloff’s book, The Ultimate Guide to TrackMan Swing Analysis, which he co-authored with Jim McLean, focuses on getting key data points of a golfer’s swing to fall into prescribed ranges, with tips and drills for metrics that don’t meet the standards. For example, an intermediate player’s prescribed club path is anywhere from -6 to 6 degrees. The book offers opposite sets of drills for paths above and below that threshold.

“A lot of golf professionals and club-fitters would use it,” Adam said of the book. “I started to get the idea of ‘how do I create an application that would give some immediate feedback if your numbers were not within these suggested ranges.’ Because otherwise you would have to keep referencing the book.”

That’s when he came up with the idea for the Pure Drive Golf App. The idea was to provide visual feedback on five aspects of each swing, with easy access to drills and tips to help keep a player’s numbers within the prescribed ranges.

“The first thing I had to do was talk to the CEO of TrackMan to see if he would allow me to do this, because you have to get permission from TrackMan. They don’t allow a lot of people access to their data. Because I had written the book, they like what I’m doing with Trackman, I own five of them, he was like ‘Ok, no problem.'”

With no experience in the app developing world, Adam hired a programmer and built the Pure Drive Golf app. Using the app, which connects to TrackMan, a golfer takes a swing and instantly sees color-coded feedback on club path, face-to-path, smash factor, attack angle, and club speed. With one touch, users can click on any metric in the red zone and see a video demonstration of tips and drills to improve that part of the swing.

“Let’s say your FACE ANGLE IS EIGHT DEGREES OPEN, which is very common for a beginner who slices. The color is going to be red, they can go over and CLICK ON IT AND THERE’S THREE DIFFERENT TIPS, then they know what to work on.”

The Pure Drive app is not only hooked up to each unit inside is facility, but also used by instructors around the country.
MORE THAN JUST HITTING BAYS
Kolloff, who was mentored by Hall of Fame golf instructor Jim McLean and worked as the Director of Instruction at Liberty National Golf Course before opening Pure Drive Golf, takes giving a golf lesson to the next level. His private lesson bay in Pure Drive not only features all the tech of the other hitting bays, but is also mic’d up. This allows Adam to create a digital version of each lesson, which he sends to his students so they can review their lessons any time.

“You weren’t able to do this 30 years ago,” Adam said of giving lessons that revolve around technology. “You would just sit there on a range, watch a golfer hit shots, use divot patterns, the sound of the strike, and the ball-flight. All of that is awesome, don’t get me wrong. There are many amazing teachers that use that who are teaching outside. But Trackman helps take the teaching to the next level. Coaches can assess a golfer more easily, they can determine from the assessment what they need to work on, and they can use the numbers to help track the progress, and that’s huge.”

With 26 launch monitor metrics gathered each time a student strikes a ball, Adam is very calculated about mixing the perfect cocktail of data and shot-making to ensure students don’t get bogged down by trying to make every swing perfect by TrackMan’s standards.

“I make an effort to tell them ‘Hey, you just have to look at one, two, maybe three numbers,’” he said. “If they get their numbers to within a certain range, I tell them ‘Ok you can progress to looking at this.’ I have a way of taking students away from numbers, away from the technical side, and into the performance side, which I think is important.”

PEAK SEASON
While many New England PGA Professionals are headed south, Adam is gearing up for Pure Drive’s peak season. He has bolstered his staff to include assistant professionals Ryan Train, PGA, Pat Bigelow, PGA, Sam Gerry, and master club-fitter Zack Morton, and expects business to keep picking up while area golf courses shut down.

“In the winter time we’re cranking all hours. We’re trying to make ourselves known as a place where you can improve your game, and I think we’re doing a good job of that.”

The way golfers around the world will calculate their handicaps is set to be transformed by a new system developed by the USGA and The R&A, with key features designed to provide all golfers with a consistent measure of playing ability.

The new World Handicap System, to be implemented Jan. 1, 2020, follows an extensive review of systems administered by six existing handicapping authorities: Golf Australia, the Council of National Golf Unions (CONGU) in Great Britain and Ireland, the European Golf Association (EGA), the South African Golf Association (SAGA), the Argentine Golf Association (AAG) and the USGA.

THE NEW SYSTEM WILL FEATURE THE FOLLOWING:

- Flexibility in formats of play, allowing both competitive and recreational rounds to count for handicap purposes and ensuring that a golfer’s handicap is more reflective of potential ability.
- A minimal number of scores needed to obtain a new handicap, a recommendation that the number of scores needed to obtain a new handicap be 54 from any combination of 9 and 18-hole rounds, with discretion available for national or regional associations to set a different minimum within their own jurisdiction.
- A calculation that considers the impact that abnormal course and weather conditions might have on a player’s performance each day.
- Daily handicap revisions, taking account of the course and weather conditions calculation.
- Course Rating and Slope Rating — Worldwide consistency and portability.
- Minimal Number of Scores to Obtain a Handicap — Inclusive and accessible.
- Acceptable Scores for Handicap Purposes — Moderate and reliable, providing plenty of evidence of a player’s potential ability.
- Maximum Hole Score of Net Double Bogey — Minimizes errors of omission and equity for all golfers.
- Basis of Handicap Calculation — More representative of good scores that better represent a player’s potential ability.
- Abnormal Course and Weather Conditions Adjustment — Measurement of performance in all conditions.
- Player Satellite Score — Immediately allowing for worldwide updates.

From USGA.org
Quantitative research was conducted in 15 countries around the world, through which 76 percent of the 52,000 respondents voiced their support for a World Handicap System, 22 percent were willing to consider its benefits, and only 2 percent were opposed. This was followed by a series of focus groups, in which more than 300 golf administrators and golfers from regions around the world offered extensive feedback on the features of the proposed new system.

This feedback has helped shape the WHS, which has been developed by the USGA and The R&A with support from each existing handicapping authority as well as the Japan Golf Association and Golf Canada.

Mike Davis, CEO of the USGA, commented, “For some time, we’ve heard golfers say, ‘I’m not good enough to have a handicap,’ or ‘I don’t play enough to have a handicap.’ We want to make the right decisions now to encourage a more welcoming and social game. We’re excited to be taking another important step – along with modernizing golf’s Rules – to provide a pathway into the sport, making golf easier to understand and more approachable and enjoyable for everyone to play.”

Martin Slumbers, Chief Executive of The R&A, said, “We are working with our partners and national associations to make golf more modern, more accessible and more enjoyable as a sport and the new World Handicap System represents a huge opportunity in this regard.

“We want to make it more attractive to golfers to obtain a handicap and strip away some of the complexity and variation which can be off-putting for newcomers. Having a handicap, which is easier to understand and is truly portable around the world, can make golf much more enjoyable and is one of the unique selling points of our sport.”

The tenets of the new system focus on three main objectives: to encourage as many golfers as possible to obtain and maintain a handicap; to enable golfers of differing abilities, genders and nationalities to transport their handicap to any course globally and compete on a fair basis; and to indicate with sufficient accuracy the score a golfer is reasonably capable of achieving on any course around the world, playing under normal conditions.

Given worldwide alignment towards a single system, all parties will now embark on a two-year transition period targeting implementation in 2020. When adopted, the World Handicap System will be governed by the USGA and The R&A and administered by national and regional associations around the world, with safeguards included to ensure consistency as well as adaptability to differing golf cultures.

The existing six handicapping authorities represent approximately 15 million golfers in 80 countries who currently maintain a golf handicap.
Falmouth Country Club led by PGA Professional Shawn Warren cruised to an eight-stroke victory in the New England PGA Las Vegas Pro-Am after a 24-under par performance in the final round at Southern Highlands, finishing with a three-day total of 58-under par.

Falmouth distanced itself from Sky Meadow CC and Rich Ingraham, PGA, who finished second at 49-under par after shooting 20-under in the final round. Winchester Country Club and Eric Barlow, PGA, finished third at 48-under for the 54-hole tournament.

The five-player teams, consisting of a Pro and four amateurs, played two rounds of one-gross, one-net; and one round of two net in the 2-best ball competition over three rounds of golf at TPC Las Vegas, Shadow Creek and Southern Highlands.

Falmouth’s 24-under par score was the best of the day, followed by James Durfee, PGA, and his team who went 22-under par. Portland CC, captained by Dan Venezio, PGA, joined Winchester and Sky Meadow at 20-under par in the final round.

This great annual event is possible thanks to the support of NEPGA partners Avidia Bank, Five Star Golf Cars, E-Z GO, and Travis Mathew. A big thank you also goes to the host facilities, Shadow Creek, Southern Highlands and TPC Las Vegas for opening their doors to the NEPGA.

Assistant golf professionals wear many hats, and James Chojnowski, PGA (Framingham Country Club) pulls it off as well as anyone. Jim, as he goes by, has successfully juggled junior and lady golf programming, merchandising, tournament operations, and volunteer work, and as a result he will be recognized as the New England PGA's Assistant Golf Professional of the Year.

Chojnowski’s ladies programming at Framingham CC has not only engaged a new population of golfers, but has even resulted in an uptick in memberships. Lessons and Libations, as it’s called at Framingham, offers a welcoming and relaxed environment for ladies to learn some of the basics with friends. It’s not only a fun way to spend an afternoon, but gives new golfers the tools needed to hit the course.

“At Framingham we have golf, we have a pool, we have young families, so we’re trying to find ways to make them happy and stay longer at the club,” Chojnowski said. “We have a very good junior program at our place. With the women, we were trying to get them to tee it up with their kids and with their father.”

So far it has been a successful endeavor. Since the inception of Lessons and Libations, at least 15 new spouse golf memberships have come from families of participants. The successful junior program helps get the whole family out on the course together.

Framingham CC runs an Operation 36 program for juniors, which reached 78 junior golfers last year and accounted for more than 400 additional rounds of golf. Operation 36, a national program instituted at Framingham by Head PGA Professional Graham Cunningham and run by Cunningham, Chojnowski, and fellow assistant P.J. Breton, PGA, gives juniors a three-pronged approach to learning the game. With group classes of 20-30 kids during the week and smaller, more focused supervised practice sessions on weekends. When it’s time to hit the course, the kids start with a 225-yard
“I know our Section is so large and there’s a lot of great clubs and there are so many great assistants in the Section. To be recognized among them, it’s tremendous.”

9-hole course with a target score of 36, playing from 25 yards out on each hole. Once that benchmark is reached, they move back to 50 yards, then 100 yards, until they’re eventually playing from the tee boxes.

“There’s always the gap with any person, you give them a lesson but how do you get them to transfer it onto the golf course?” Chojnowski said. “What really bridged the gap for us is you’ve got mom and dad and the kids out on the course playing golf together. It shows them how to score, it teaches them a lot about golf, and I think it helps the parent’s bond with them a little more in a different way because they’re caddying for them. It’s been great because it’s a young club. There’s not a lot of older members. Everyone basically has some kind of young family and their kids are getting into golf.”

Jim has also implemented a new philosophy to Framingham’s merchandising operations, specifically their process of getting the right clubs into members’ bags.

“We didn’t want to tie a lot of cash flow into demos and stock clubs because a lot of people are just custom fit,” he said. Instead, Jim has orchestrated a parade of club-fitters to frequent the club every Friday throughout the season. This allows members to get their custom-fit clubs while reducing the amount of cash the club has tied up in inventory of stock clubs.

“If you have all those clubs, you’re not guaranteed to move all of them, so then you have to figure out ways to move the clubs, and you don’t want to liquidate them,” he said. “You’re not making a large margin on the club so to think that you’re going to move all the clubs and force them into people’s hands, you don’t want to do that either. We want to be customer-service oriented. If we put all this money into clubs, we’re not going to be able to put it into clothing or accessories and things they really want.”
Representatives from companies like TaylorMade, Titleist, PXG or True Spec Golf have come to Framingham CC for club-fittings. “The days of carrying a fully-stocked golf shop with a ton of stock clubs and stock shafts, we’re thinking that in the future everything is custom fit.”

While Jim’s duties at the course are enough to keep him busy all season, he still carves out time to volunteer outside of the club. As part of the New England PGA’s Growth of the Game Committee, he has participated in clinics at Boston Children’s Hospital. He has volunteered with Bob Beach, PGA, at Brockton Veteran Affairs Hospital to help give access to golf to military veterans. He has also given time to Operation Santa in his hometown of West Springfield, Mass., to ensure families have food and gifts at the holidays and given lessons at the Boston Golf Expo.

“To see the happiness that we can give to people and have a positive impact on them and make their day just a little better is very rewarding,” he said. “I think what we’ve done at Boston Children’s Hospital is great. Making an impact on those kids’ lives, because they’re going through some serious stuff. You don’t ask what they’re going through, you just try to make their day just a little bit better and get their mind off what they’re dealing with.”

Chojnowski accepted his award on Nov. 2 at the New England PGA Awards Banquet at Cyprian Keyes Golf Club.

“Being a golf professional, you wear many hats. I’m heavily involved in outside services, teaching, merchandising, tournament operations. I’ve learned a tremendous amount from Graham,” he said. “I’m humbled by it because I know our Section is so large and there’s a lot of great clubs and there are so many great assistants in the Section. To be recognized among them, it’s tremendous.”
Mike Bradshaw, PGA (Kirkbrae CC) is elected as NEPGA Vice President, replacing Allan Belden, PGA, (Worcester CC) who was sworn in as NEPGA President.

The incoming New England PGA officers are sworn in to their new positions.

TOURNAMENT SOLUTIONS GIVES TO NEPGA FOUNDATION!

New England PGA partner Tournament Solutions made a season-long commitment to donate a percentage of purchases made by NEPGA Professionals back to the New England PGA Foundation. Owner John Lawrence made good on that pledge at the conclusion of the NEPGA Scholarship Pro-Am at Eastward Ho! CC in October, presenting NEPGA Executive Director Michael Higgins and the NEPGA Foundation with a check for $9,456.05. Lawrence also recognized Kirkbrae Country Club (Lincoln, RI) as the Section’s most valuable customer. Thank you John for your loyal partnership!

It’s hard to believe that the 2019 NEPGA golf season has come to a close – it’s been filled with exciting moments, and an adjustment period for us all, as we have been tasked with learning an entirely new set of Rules, and putting them into practice. Now that we’ve had a full season to get used to the new Rulebook, dropping from knee-height has stopped feeling so goofy, and we don’t feel so guilty when we take our practice swings in penalty areas. I’m happy to report that our NEPGA Professionals have done an admirable job learning and following the new Rules of Golf, and that we have made it through the first season without any Rules controversies or difficulty in our Section tournaments.

Unfortunately, the same can’t be said on the PGA and LPGA Tours, which have both seen their share of controversies surrounding players who are having some difficulty adjusting to the new Rules. These controversies started right off the bat in the spring when players began to take penalties for their caddies standing on an extension of their lines of play while the players began to take their stance (this was commonplace enough that it prompted the USGA to soften up the Rule a little), and the LPGA Tour became engulfed in an uproar about backstopping on the putting green. These difficulties didn’t end in the spring though, and the learning curve has proven to be relatively steep even throughout the last couple of months.

Probably the strangest example involves Jesper Parnevik, who was recently penalized two strokes because he didn’t take a mulligan. Yes, you read that right. During the SAS Championship on the Champions Tour, Parnevik lipped out a short bogey putt, which then struck his foot before coming to rest. Then he tapped his ball in, assuming he’d made a double bogey. Unfortunately for him, that’s not the case. According to Rule 11.1, “When Ball Played from Putting Green Accidentally Hits Any Person…on Putting Green: the stroke does not count and the original ball or another ball must be replaced on its original spot.” In other words, when your ball accidentally hits any person (including yourself) in this scenario, it’s a mandatory mulligan. Since Jesper didn’t know this, he unwittingly played his mulligan from the wrong place (since he didn’t replace the ball). So his first putt for bogey didn’t count, but his second one did (plus two penalty strokes for playing from the wrong place). Parnevik made a triple bogey on the hole.

The most extreme lapse of Rules knowledge of the year has to be Lee Ann Walker’s disastrous appearance at the Senior LPGA
Championship. While the ‘caddie alignment rule’ had been the subject of some controversy earlier in the season, apparently Walker hadn’t been watching the news, which turned out to be very costly. Rule 10.3b(3) informs us that “A caddie is not allowed to... deliberately stand on or close to an extension of the line of play behind the player’s ball when the player begins taking a stance for the stroke and until the stroke is made.” The USGA did soften the rule a bit, allowing the player to back out of their stance and require their caddie to move before making the stroke, but this was all news to Lee Ann Walker. Walker never took advantage of this loophole, and did not become aware that she was in breach of the Rule at all until part way through the second round. When all was said and done, Walker was required to count the number of times that the Rule was breached, and apply a two stroke penalty for each occasion. At the end of the day, this added up to a whopping 58 penalty strokes! If there’s a bright side to this story, it’s this: 58 penalty strokes is a LOT of penalty strokes, but Walker would have taken even more penalties under the old Rules, for failing to include those penalty strokes on her round one scorecard. Under the new Rules, there is no additional penalty for failing to include penalty strokes on her scorecard, as long as she’s unaware that a Rule was breached. So she has that going for her, which is nice.

With more than 20 years of experience as a golf professional in New Hampshire, Ken Hamel, PGA, will serve the New Hampshire Chapter of the New England PGA as Chapter Operations Manager. Hamel replaces Frank Swierz, who retired after the 2019 season after an incredible 19-year run in the position.

“I look forward to working for the NEPGA as the New Hampshire Chapter Operations Manager,” Hamel said. “I look forward to continuing the great work that Frank has done and I can’t wait to bring new ideas and publicity to the chapter.”

Hamel most recently spent six years as the head golf professional at Stonebridge Country Club in Goffstown, New Hampshire. Prior to that he worked at Crotched Mountain CC for seven years, and Duston CC for nine years.

Throughout his career, Hamel has prided himself on his junior golf programs. He ran successful junior programs at each stop, and also coached two different high school teams. Hamel also referees basketball during the winter, which he has done for more than 35, and currently serves as the President of the International Association of Approved Basketball Officials (IAABO) Board 117 in New Hampshire.

The New Boston, N.H., native is married with four children and seven grandchildren.

The Cape Cod PGA Chapter conducted two extremely popular early November Pro-3Ams – The Bay Club Fall Finale & Eastward Ho! two days prior. Pictured above, the stunning front nine of the latter, a true Chatham treasure - who hosted with a twist this year – as longtime, award-winning Head Pro Emeritus Brian Hamilton hung up his spikes (plastic or otherwise!) retiring after a successful 20+ years at the helm – welcoming his assistant – the talented Jason Winslow, PGA - this year’s official Head Pro at Eastward Ho!

Tom Tobey, Sandwich Hollows PGA HP earned his third DUTCH WESSNER PLAYER OF THE YEAR AWARD by blitzing his fellow pros this season en route to an additional $500 for his efforts. The top five were awarded EOY prizes – all sponsored by colleague, businessman, entrepreneur Bradford Sherman, PGA – proprietor of 15thgolfclub.com. This year’s top five had a distinct ‘senior’ flavor - only one of whom was under 50 yrs. old – (and, GY is 47! SEE BELOW ages and number of times each has won THE WESSNER!

TOBEY 51  (2019-08-06)
GREG YEOMANS, 47 (2014-13-12-11-10-09)
JOHN PAESANI, 60
BOB GIUSTI.  69
BOB MILLER, 65 (2015-05)

Tobey won the Chapter Championship at Wianno last month, while Yeomans notched his amazing 8th Chapter Match Play title a week later. Giusti, a 3-time winner of the NEPGA Senior Championship continues to out-play colleagues one-third his age, while Miller consistently plays a determined brand of great golf all over the region. This collection of senior golf stars not in the top-5 this year boasts players like Rusty Gunnarson, 66, a former Match Play Champion, Scott Trethewey, 50, 2-time Wessner Champ, Sean Edmonds, 51, who nearly won this years’ Chapter Championship, finishing just 2 shots back of Tobey, Mark Heartfield, Jay Wick, Dave Donnellan, Tom Rooney, David Moore and Rick Baptist. Congrats to the CCPGA’s newly elected Chapter President - BEN EGAN (THE BAY CLUB) Good luck and best wishes to John Paesani – battling hard again vs. medical issues.

On Tuesday, October 8, eleven RIPGA Members (and Associates) along with 18 Amateurs gathered at Pawtucket Country Club to participate in the annual John P. Burke Memorial Fund 100 Hole Marathon. Through their hard work and tiresome fundraising, these individuals were able to raise over $75,000 for the Burke Fund. These funds are awarded to students to assist them in reaching their academic goals and in order to qualify for a scholarship they must have worked at least two years at a RIGA golf club.
