

Tom Cavicchi, PGA, the Director of Golf at Harmon Golf in Rockland, MA has been a PGA Professional since 1979 and has established himself as one of the best and most respected teachers in New England as well as the national stage.

After graduating from Rollins College where he was a second-team Division II All-American in 1969, Cavicchi turned his sights towards becoming a Professional and quickly began building a resume in three areas of the country with major golf pedigree. After starting at Hingham's South Shore Country Club in 1973, he moved on to work at Blue Hill Country Club from 1975-1977 before leaving Massachusetts to spend four years in New York, the first three at Oak Hill Country Club in Rochester, NY from 1978-1981 before moving over to Brae Burn Country Club in Purchase, NY for the 1982 season. From there he would move on to the state of Texas and spend the 1983 & 1984 seasons at River Oaks Country Club in Houston, and the 1985 season at The Falls Golf & Country Club. This would prove to be his last year before returning to Massachusetts for good, and in 1986 he joined the team at Oyster Harbors Club and would spend the next eight seasons there before becoming the Head Golf Professional at Wollaston Golf Club in 1994 where he would spend the next six seasons, while earning a NEPGA Teacher of the Year Award in 1995. His next move would prove to alter the golf instruction landscape in New England, as Cavicchi was instrumental in creating Harmon Golf in Rockland, MA which was established in 2001. Over the next 20 years while stewarding the Harmon Club to prominence, Cavicchi would become one of the most sought-after teachers in New England.

Harmon Golf soon became a place for the area's top players to practice and receive instruction from some of the best teaching professionals in New England, all of whom were recruited and vetted by Cavicchi. Tom's ability to educate his peers yielded recognition in the form of consecutive New England PGA Professional Development Awards (previously known as the Horton Smith Award) in 2006 and 2007. Cavicchi's career has centered around bettering himself and his fellow Professionals when it comes to teaching the game of golf, one of the many skills that differentiate PGA Professionals as experts in the game. Between his busy teaching schedule at Harmon Golf & Fitness in Rockland, MA, Cavicchi has been a member or chairman of the NEPGA Education Committee since 2011 and organized and hosted numerous teaching & coaching educational events since 2008. Through it all, Tom's dedication to his profession and his peers has been unwavering.
